2. On 29 November, the Neue Infanterie Kaserne was only lightly occupied. On 27 November, trucks and sedans and sedans occupied by soldiers wearing red-bordered black and black-bordered crimson epaulets and carrying sacks entered the installation from the direction of Schlossgarten. About 180 to 210 soldiers, also carrying trucks, marched into the installation from the same direction. Earth-bunkers and approach trenches were constructed in front of the barracks installation. On 25 November, tank firing with live ammunition was practiced in the Speck. On 26 November, tanks subsequently returned to the Neue Infanterie Kaserne.

Comment. The information that, at the end of November, elements of the 9th Gds Tank Div were absent from the post has to be confirmed. It is possible that units of the division still conducted combat firing practice, presumably in the training area, at this unusual time. the telephone line running south was constructed by signal units of the GOCG.
